QUESTSCAPE

Your city is the game.

Team Millionaires · David Ge, Aaryaman Bajaj, Smit Thakare · Columbia Startup Studio · Spring 2026

OPENING

“What do you want to do tonight?”

The most stressful sentence in any group chat.

🎬 Another movie — same seat, same passive scroll.

🍔 Dinner again — great for 45 minutes, then what?

📱 Bar hop — you're all on your phones by 10pm.

Something has changed. A better night out exists — if the group gets off the bench.

PROBLEM

Group activities are either too passive or too planned.

01

No good spontaneous options

Bars, restaurants, and movies don't create shared experiences — they just co-locate people.

02

Existing outdoor games don't scale

Pokémon Go is solo. Escape rooms are expensive and booked out. JetLag requires a film crew.

03

Nothing uses the city as the arena

GPS technology exists. Nobody has turned the real world into a playground for friend groups.

WHY NOW

Four tailwinds are colliding right now.

GPS is everywhere

Every smartphone since 2010 has sub-10m accuracy. No hardware barrier. No separate device required.

Outdoor gaming is proven

Pokémon Go made $6B lifetime proving people WILL go outside for a mobile game. The market is trained.

Content creators need experiences

JetLag the Game has 4M+ subscribers. Creators are actively looking for games to play on camera.

Post-pandemic social hunger

Gen Z and Millennials are actively seeking in-person, shared experiences over passive entertainment.

SOLUTION

Questscape: Real-world games your whole group plays together.

The City Is The Map

Custom GPS zones — campus, park, neighborhood block. Any space becomes your arena.

Strategy & Deception

Not just run-and-hide. Hiders bluff. Seekers solve puzzles. Every game is different.

Play on Any Phone

Live on the App Store now. Download, create a game, share the code — ready in 60 seconds.

Built for Groups

2 to 20+ players. Cooperative or competitive. Scales from a date night to a company offsite.

Fully Customizable

Zone size, time limits, team composition, special rules. Your game, your way.

Shareable Moments

Intel tasks require real-world photos. Built-in content for social media without trying.

PRODUCT

How a game of Questscape plays out.

1

SETUP

Host draws a custom GPS zone on any map. Players join with a game code and choose Hider or Seeker roles. Timer starts.

2

THE HUNT

Seekers track live GPS positions and earn intel by completing real-world photo tasks. Hiders navigate the zone and deploy Lies to mislead.

3

END GAME

Seekers spend points to trigger an End Game Zone check. Hiders must become visible on a public road. Seekers physically walk in and tag them.

4

WIN

Seekers win by physically locating every Hider. Hiders win by surviving until time expires. Debrief — then start round 2.

What makes every game feel different.

🙈 HIDERS

- Lies System
  Each Hider gets limited "Lies" — use them to give false answers to Seeker intel queries.
- Zone Navigation
  You can move freely inside the GPS zone but must stay within bounds.
- Intel Review
  You see Seeker photo submissions and decide to approve or deny each one.
- Fair Play Rule
  Once End Game is triggered, you must be visible from a public road.

🔍 SEEKERS — 5 Intel Tools

- Yes / No
  Ask anything — Hider answers TRUE or FALSE (might lie!)
- Radius Check
  Is the Hider within X meters of your current position?
- Cardinal Direction
  Is the Hider N, S, E, or W of you right now?
- Pin Drop
  Tap a map point — is the Hider near that location?
- Thermometer
  Move somewhere new — did you get closer or farther?

Result: No two games play the same. Strategic depth emerges from simple rules.

VALIDATION — USER RESEARCH

We tested with real users. Here's what they said.

> Think of this as an experience like a movie — you pay for the night, not the subscription.

— User Interview #1

> Only one person in the group needs to pay. That makes the price feel way more reasonable.

— User Interview #2

> It costs more to get to the zone than to subscribe — the subscription isn't even the big spend.

— User Interview #3

> I've never had a night where everyone was this engaged the whole time. Nobody touched Instagram.

— User Interview #4

Key Finding: Price sensitivity is LOW when the cost is perceived as a group experience.

BUSINESS MODEL

Freemium: free to play, premium to customize.

FREE

Always free

$0

- Full Hide & Seek game
- Up to 10 players
- Basic GPS zone
- Standard intel tools

PREMIUM

One player pays for the group

$7.99 / wk
$14.99 / mo
$49.99 / yr

- Unlimited players
- Custom zone shapes
- Advanced intel tools
- Full game stats + history

💰 Unit Economics: ~$0.01 database cost per 2-hour game session. Premium subscription = essentially 100% gross margin on each active user.

MARKET SIZE — BOTTOM-UP

A massive market hiding in plain sight.

TAM	US adults 18–35 who go out in social groups	~70M people
SAM	Smartphone owners who play mobile games outdoors	~28M people
SOM	Reachable via content creator channels (Yr 1–2)	~2M people
Revenue	2% premium conversion × $14.99/mo average	~$6M ARR target

Pokémon Go proved this market exists — $6B lifetime revenue on a single GPS game mechanic.

GO-TO-MARKET

Content creators are our distribution channel.

1

Creator plays Questscape

We reach out to YouTubers and TikTokers. The game is free content — visually compelling, shareable gameplay.

2

Audience watches & wants in

JetLag-style games routinely hit 1–4M views. Viewers immediately search the app.

3

Downloads spike

Creator's audience downloads Questscape. Organic growth with zero marginal ad spend.

4

Players create their own content

Every game generates shareable moments — GPS replays, photo intel, dramatic end-game clips.

Secondary: Google/Meta paid ads ($100 budget proven demand signal) → campus ambassador program → corporate team-building vertical.

PRODUCT ROADMAP

Hide & Seek is just the start.

✓ Live	NOW Hide & Seek	Live on App Store since Feb 2026. GPS zones, Lies mechanic, 5 intel tools.
Building	Q3 2026 Battleship IRL	Two teams draw hidden base locations. Real-world coordinate-based targeting. Seeker scans to strike.
Designed	Q3 2026 Base Race	Teams race to claim GPS waypoints across the city. Competitive territory control.
Planned	Q4 2026 Assassin Mode	Every player has a target. Last one untagged wins. City-scale paranoia.

Long-term vision: Questscape becomes the platform. Games are the content. Creators are the channel.
